ADE WEBSITE FACELIFT

ADE Incorporated is pleased to announce that the ADE website will be receiving a facelift very shortly. Not only will the website be exhibiting a new appearance, several new features will be added over the coming months. It is our desire to create a website that serves as a resource for all of your substance abuse assessment and program questions.

One of the highlights of the new website will be the addition of forums. Forums are also referred to as bulletin boards or online discussion sites. Many of you have utilized forums when you are looking for an answer to a question or information on a product or service. ADE would like our customers to utilize our website and forums to discuss best practices, to share ideas, to keep us informed of concerns, and hopefully to network with others in the industry and across the country.

ADE also hopes to add features such as: online training videos, online support, upcoming product information and more.

As more of our customers are moving to the Internet and web-based programs, it seems logical to provide new services that will allow improved operation and increased productivity.

We look forward to your feedback, as always, and hope that you find this new resource helpful!
