Twas the Night Before Christmas...Mom Style

© By Catherine Cornell

Twas the night before Christmas, when all through the abode,
Only one creature was stirring, she was cleaning the commode.

The children were sleeping, all snug in their beds,
While visions of X-box 360 and IPODS flipped through their heads.

Dad was snoring in front of the family TV
With a half-constructed bike propped up on his knee.

So only Mom heard the reindeer hooves clatter,
Which made her sigh, 'Now what's the matter?'

With toilet brush still clutched in her hand,
She descended the stairs and saw an old man
All covered with soot, which fell with a shrug'
'Oh great,' muttered Mom, 'now I have to clean up the rug.'

'Ho! Ho! Ho!' cried Santa, 'I'm glad you're awake-
My gift to you was especially difficult to make.'
'Thanks Santa, but all I want is time alone.'
'Exactly!' he chuckled, 'so I've made you a clone.'

'A clone?' she muttered. 'What good is that?'
Now run along Santa, I've no time to chat.'
Then out walked the clone, the dear mother's twin,
Same hair and same eyes, the same double chin.

'She'll cook and she'll dust, she'll mop every mess,
You'll relax, take it easy, watch the Young and Restless.'

'Fantastic!' mom cheered, 'My dream has come true!'
'I'll shop and I'll read and I'll sleep the night through!'

From the room up above, the youngest did fret.
'Mommy come quickly----I'm scared and I'm wet!'
The clone replied, 'I'm coming sweetheart.'
'WOW!' the mom smiled. 'She sure knows her part.'

The clone changed the small one and sung him a tune

As she bundled him up in a blanket cocoon.
'You're the best mommy ever---I really love you!'
The clone smiled and said, 'I love you too!'

The real mom frowned and said 'Santa , no deal!
That's my baby's love that she's trying to steal.'
Smiling wisely Santa said, 'To me it's so clear,
Only one loving mother is needed right here.'

The mom kissed her child and tucked him in bed,
'Thank you so much, dear Santa, for clearing my head',

Knowing time goes too fast ,and it won't be too long,
That her children will no longer need her cradle nor song,

The clock on the mantle then began to chime;
Santa whispered to the clone, 'It works every time.'
And with the clone at his side, Santa said, ' Goodnight
Merry Christmas, dear Mom, you will be all right!'

Oklahoma leaders announce Crystal Darkness campaign to fight meth

Oklahoma Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs Control

Oklahoma City—Leaders from across Oklahoma on Monday announced Crystal Darkness Oklahoma, a campaign aimed at tackling methamphetamine abuse in the state. The campaign's co-chairs, Oklahoma First Lady Kim Henry and former Oklahoma County District Attorney Wes Lane, said a 30-minute documentary will air on every Oklahoma television station at 6:30 p.m. Jan. 13.

"While we have taken the fight directly to methamphetamine in Oklahoma, we know families across the state still struggle with this powerful drug," Henry said. "Crystal Darkness Oklahoma will highlight education, prevention, recovery and hope to let folks know their life can get back on track."

Lane said as a prosecutor he enjoyed watching families beat meth addiction and improve their lives.

"Crystal Darkness Oklahoma will prevent families from hitting rock bottom and also lift those up who have already reached that point," Lane said. "In many cases, it's simply a matter of reaching out to those in need and providing them with the tools to recover."

The campaign is modeled after similar programs in Nevada, California, Oregon and Arizona. It is aimed at increasing meth awareness, as well as providing treatment and law enforcement assistance to communities—large and small—across Oklahoma. The documentary will feature gripping testimonials that graphically portray the devastating impact meth has had on families and communities across Oklahoma. Although agencies, counseling experts and law enforcement are contributing to Crystal Darkness Oklahoma, Henry and Lane said the campaign will not be successful without help from the public. They called on schools, places of worship, civic clubs, cities and towns to host watch parties during the documentary's airing to bring neighbors together to engage in honest discussions about problems facing each community. Oklahomans can go to www.crystaldarknessoklahoma.org to schedule their own watch party. Oklahomans will call 211 the night of the documentary and the days following to receive aid in their fight against meth.

After the documentary's airing on Jan. 13, Phase Two of Crystal Darkness Oklahoma will begin. Phase Two will include help for targeted communities across Oklahoma. These communities will receive seed money to start anti-meth campaigns of their own. These communities will be selected by how badly help is needed.

"Oklahoma took a historic step forward by passing the country's toughest anti-meth legislation and numerous states followed," Henry said. "Despite our best efforts, the meth epidemic still robs Oklahoma youth of their future and replaces it with despair. Crystal Darkness Oklahoma has the power to ignite a grassroots movement and gives Oklahomans the chance to make a difference in their own community."
